

Financial Freedom and Feng Shui

Feng Shui, the Chinese art of placement and arrangement, has been said to be the solution for all of life's ills. The greatest ill or "dis-ease" of mankind the world over is that of poverty.

Poverty, or lack, implies being disconnected from the Source of Supply. The true purpose, or end product, of feng shui is to restore heaven on earth by teaching a person how to make the connection to the Source, by being aware of the 8-lifestyle categories covering every facet of life. These categories are: career & purpose; helpful people; children and ideas; marriage and relationships; fame and fortune; money and wealth; family health and ancestors; knowledge and self-actualization. All life experiences and pursuits can be placed into one of these 8 categories.

Feng shui is one of the most powerful forces on earth that we can use to get rid of poverty. Why is this? Feng shui tells us the optimum place for where furnishings and possessions are to be placed in order to achieve the full measure of one's destiny. The environment cannot be left out of the equation because we are the products of our heredity and environment.

The first requirement of feng shui is to clear all the clutter from the spirit, mind, body and environment of a person. As soon as the mind is clear of negative thoughts and clutter, the body and environment will reflect the new state of mind. For example, when the interior and exterior spaces of a house are set up properly, wealth is magnetized to the person occupying the house. Abundance comes in the form and amount that the person can handle.

Feng shui teaches us that money alone cannot obliterate poverty from our lives. It takes a free Spirit and an uncluttered mind, body and environment all working together to bring about a permanent change of prosperity. So get busy and eradicate any lack in your life; then - help others!
